Navy members recommend the organization and procedures set forth in Part B. The Air Force members neither support nor reject Part B, but feel that until a decision as to Part A is known, Part B should not be finally acted upon. It is the recommendation of the whole committee, therefore, that Part B should be reviewed subsequently. ~~The Army and Navy members feel, however, that in order currently to effect better coordination, Part B should be implemented on an interim basis, without prejudice to the further consideration of it subsequently.~~

5. Observers from the Department of State and the Central Intelligence Agency attended the later meetings of the Committee. The Committee recommends that the Secretary of Defense forward copies of Part A to the Department of State and to the Central Intelligence Agency for any comment they may care to make, prior to resolving the matter.

6. It will be noted in Part A that the whole Committee agrees to the creation of an Armed Forces Communications Intelligence Board (AFCIB). There has not been complete agreement concerning the controlling body for Communication Security, ~~which at present is under cognizance of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCEC).~~
